Statutes of Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo (Society of the Most Holy Body of Christ) in Mantua

In Italian and Latin, illuminated manuscript on parchment

Northern Italy (Mantua), September 3, 1519 (dated)

58 folios on parchment, contemporary foliation in brown ink, 2-58 (first leaf unnumbered), complete (collation i¹⁰[-10], lacking one leaf after f. 9, without loss of text, contemporary foliation continues without break] ii-iv⁸ v¹⁰ vi¹⁴ vii¹), no signatures or catchwords, ruled in lead point (justification c. 170 x 112 mm.), written in brown ink in an upright late humanist script with elements of italic on c. 17-23 long lines, several maniples in the margins, rubrics in red, capitals beginning paragraphs decorated with cadels, 2- to 4-line initials alternating in red with blue penwork flourishes and in blue with red penwork flourishes, one 7-line foliage initial in pink, blue, red and green infilled with an area in blue with white penwork on a gold ground, accompanied by floral antennas painted in blue extending in the upper and inner margins, a full-page coat of arms painted in gold, silver and colors, signs of frequent use, some leaves stained (e.g. ff. 1-3, 26v-27) but text legible throughout, in overall good condition. ORIGINAL BINDING of brown morocco over wooden boards, covers gold-tooled with a frame decorated with fine curving stems and foliage, fine brass fittings and bosses in the corners and the center of the covers, four pairs of brass clasps and catches, kept in a modern case in buckram covered in light blue paper and entitled on the spine "SS. Corpo di Cristo / Statutes / Ms. on vellum / Mantova / 1518 (date of foundation)," a small round hole cutting through the entire text block in the inner lower corner of the leaves presumably for keeping the manuscript together with a cord before it was bound (?), minor wear to leather and brass fittings, in overall excellent condition. Dimensions 210 x 150 mm.

This large, impressive manuscript bears witness to the importance of the lay confraternity of the Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo, founded in the cathedral church of Mantua. Copied by Giuseppe Zappelli, son of the Mantuan painter, Domenico Zappelli (d. 1527), it is the earliest known manuscript from the confraternity, made in the year following its foundation. The handsome binding and script of this book correspond to the styles of medieval manuscripts from previous centuries. The manuscript is adorned with a luxurious full-page coat of arms of Cardinal Sigismondo Gonzaga, the organization's patron, and a large opening initial, both finely illuminated in gold and colors.

PROVENANCE

1. The colophon on f. 58v states that the manuscript was written on September 3, 1519 by Giuseppe, son of the painter, Domenico Zappelli (Zapelli): "Ego Joseph Filius Magistri Dominici de Zapelis pictoris Scripsi Anno domini M cccc xv iiiii die iii Setembris." The illumination might also be by him or perhaps by his father. Nothing appears to be known about the Mantuan painter Domenico Zappelli, except that he died in 1527 at the age of 70 (cf. Gualandi, 1842, p. 25, D'Arco, 1857, p. 48, and Allgemeines Künstlerlexikon, Online).

The arms of Cardinal Sigismondo Gonzaga (1469-1525) on f. 2v and the supplication to the cardinal on ff. 3-4 indicate the confraternity was founded under his aegis.

- Modern booksellers' marks in pencil on the front pastedown: "1500-", "5134," "13" (encircled), "11" (encircled and crossed out), and "146/30/3". On the front pastedown are visible remains of something that was once pasted there, probably a bookplate.

f. 3, illuminated 7-line initial 'I' formed of foliage in pink, blue, red and green infilled with an area in blue with white penwork on a gold ground, accompanied by floral antennas painted in blue extending in the upper and inner margins.

The text in capitals on f. 1 in our manuscript states that the Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo was founded in the cathedral church of Mantua by Mapheo da Osma on 25 March 25, 1518: "Primus huius sacratissima societatis inventor fuit Mapheus Hosma anno domini n. Ihesus Christi MDXVIII die XXV marzii." The Ordini della Compagnia del Santissimo Corpo di Christo was printed by Francesco Osanna in Mantua in 1578. There is a copy of this very rare edition at the Biblioteca comunale Teresiana in Mantua, and an image of the frontispiece online (see Online Resources), but we have not been able to locate any other copies and compare the texts in our manuscript to the statutes printed sixty years later.

Before the re-emergence of the manuscript, the oldest known document testifying to the existence of this confraternity dated from 1529 (Avanzini, pp. 22-23). Our manuscript provides evidence that the Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo in Mantua was founded more than ten years earlier than was previously thought.

Religious confraternities, serving both the spiritual and temporal aspirations of lay people, were a ubiquitous feature of medieval and early modern Europe. The statutes for the Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo in Mantua were copied in our manuscript a year and half after the confraternity was founded. They give information about new members joining the confraternity (chapter 1), the regular confession that members are expected to make twice a year (chapter 2), and prayers that members should say daily: five Pater Nosters and five Hail Marys (chapter 3). The statutes also describe the solemn mass sung on the first day of each month by the canons and priests of the cathedral church in the chapel dedicated to the confraternity (chapter 4), and the manner and order of the administration of the Holy Sacrament of the Corpus Christi to the sick, as well as the procession made at the time of Pentecost (chapter 5). They also discuss the subventions and suffrages to be made to the sick and deceased (chapter 6), the election of officials for governing the confraternity (chapter 7), how the statutes should be read to the confraternity three times a year (chapter 8), and how to proceed with members who do not pay (chapter 9).

Lay confraternities, such as the Società del Santissimo Corpo di Cristo in Mantua, developed in Italy in the sixteenth century to provide charity for the poor and the sick, as well as to reinforce Eucharistic piety. These confraternities combined traditional motifs of piety and devotion with more modern ideas of inner conversion, setting a good example, and individual ritualistic piety.

The confraternity of the Santissimo Corpo di Cristo was especially widespread in the countryside, and its development in Mantua was strongly supported by the Gonzaga family (Mozzarelli, 1987, p. 80, and Nicoli, 2016, pp. 24-25). The bishop of Verona at the time our manuscript was copied, Gian Matteo Giberti (1495-1543), provided significant intellectual inspiration for the development of lay societies, and his role in the history of religious life in Mantua has been studied by Roberto Rezzaghi and Mario Bendiscioli (Rezzaghi, 1986 and Bendiscioli, 1960). The older Compagnia del Preziosissimo Sangue di Gesù Cristo, a confraternity devoted to the relic of the Holy Blood of Christ, which, according to tradition, was brought to Mantua by the centurion Longinus, is well known. The evidence of our manuscript from the much less well-known confraternity dedicated to Corpus Christi thus represents an important new source for the history of confraternities and lay religious life in Mantua, and more broadly, in Italy, in the sixteenth century.
